

Cuttlefish Motion Camouflage during predation

Dr. Kerry Perkins

In cuttlefish the ability to change camouflage rapidly within their environment gives us an opportunity to study what techniques may be employed to reduce detection while in motion. In this study we investigate how the presence of prey may influence motion camouflage in uniform and disruptive environments.